Possible Chicken Pox Exposure

If you have a PBE (Personal Belief or Medical Exemption) to vaccinations please take extra care with regard to this notice.

Your child may have been exposed to Chicken Pox. You may want to call your physician if any of the symptoms listed below appear. Everyone is better protected when an ill child is kept at home while contagious. It is especially important for your child's health that home care continue until the temperature is normal for 24 hours and symptoms have disappeared. Other children who come in contact with the child may attend school as long as they're not ill.

Chicken Pox—Small water blister on the scalp, neck and covered parts of the body are usually the first sign. The blisters break easily. A child may become cross, tire easily and have a fever during the first few days of the illness. A sick youngster should be kept at home for 7 days from the appearance of the first crop of blisters. The incubation period for chicken pox is 14 to 21 days.
